What is Corporatism?

"Corporatism is a system in which big business uses its political connections and ability to wring favors from politicians in order to cripple its smaller competitors and increase its profits. Business leaders who take advantage of the public in this way are usually careful to disguise their behavior. They do not announce that they are trying to win special benefits from government. They claim to be serving the public interest. Thus corporatism often takes the form of regulation, supposedly for the public good, that disproportionately harms smaller businesses that lack the political pull of larger firms. This is not just unconstitutional. It is immoral. And it will not cease until an enraged population decides enough is enough."

James Madison,
 Author of the
 U.S. Constitution

"If Congress can employ money indefinitely to the general welfare, and are the sole and supreme judges of the general welfare, they may take the care of religion into their own hands; they may appoint teachers in every State, county and parish and pay them out of their public treasury; they may take into their own hands the education of children, establishing in like manner schools throughout the Union; they may assume the provision of the poor; they may undertake the regulation of all roads other than post-roads; in short, everything, from the highest object of state legislation down to the most minute object of police, would be thrown under the power of Congress.... Were the power of Congress to be established in the latitude contended for, it would subvert the very foundations, and transmute the very nature of the limited Government established by the people of America."

The Price Of Liberty Is Eternal Vigilance

When the founders created the Constitution, it was not written as a set of laws against the people, rather it created a set of laws restricting the government from exceeding its authorities given to it by the people and for the people. Today, however, our Representatives swear an oath to uphold the Constitution, but many times their actions and votes betray it. While they now create laws that take away your liberties and use the police to back them up, they break the higher laws under the Constitution and think there is no one looking. That is where we, the people, come in as Constitutional Deputies to hold our Representatives accountable.
